One of New Zealand's most significant natural character areas; This is an opportunity to experience the beauty of this unique place. The Mahinapua wetlands were formed by the forces of the Hokitika Glacier meeting the Tasman Sea. As the glacier retreated, it left behind swampy margins, creating the perfect habitat for distinguished Kahikatea native rainforest. Mahinapua Creek is a protected whitebait breeding sanctuary encouraging a rich and diverse bird population.

Enjoy the birdsong tranquility as you take in the scenery; the mirror-finish lake amid ancient Rimu and Kamahi trees with the snow-capped mountains in the distance.
